ABSTRACT

The present invention provides a method for producing an electric double layer capacitor mountable by reflow soldering, which comprises assembling an electric double layer capacitor, subjecting the capacitor to a heat treatment following a temperature profile resembling to the temperature profile with respect to time employed in the reflow soldering step, and welding a terminal thereafter.